Analytical Services, Inc. to Build New Corporate Headquarters Building in Cummings Research Park

Research Park Land Deal Signifies Growth and Plans for Future Expansion

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. – August 10, 2004 – Analytical Services, Inc. (ASI) today announced plans for the construction of a new 25,000 square foot corporate headquarters facility located in Cummings Research Park. The announcement comes following the purchase of a 9.8-acre tract of land located on Voyager Way. As the company moves forward with construction plans, the new building will accommodate both current and future growth. Over the next ten years, this investment will have positive economic impacts for the Huntsville community, including the addition of new jobs; capital investments linked to construction of the new facilities, and projected tax revenues from the property.

“We are very excited about what this expansion means both for our company and the community,” said Irma Tuder, President and CEO of ASI. When this building is completed, we will have a facility that can expand to accommodate the future growth of our staff and contribute to the local economy.”

Building construction at the new site will begin in this year and the building will be open for operations in January 2006.
